NYC Must Do Its Part for Fix LaGuardia Tie-ups

The New York Post today reports apparent delays in moving New York City funding and projects dating back to the last administration aimed to alleviate if not end highway traffic tie-ups that afflict LaGuardia Airport.

An audit by NYS Comptroller Tom Dinapoli revealed the City's lateness.

Has a pre-occupation with imposing the Congestion Tax and various pedestrian malls during the prior administration and bike lanes and related projects since cause folks to miss the need to move important initiatives to address vehicular traffic issues at NYC's two airports?

And by the way these airports play a significant economic role in New York City!
